The needs of our public schools do not stop with buildings. In todays world, technology is a vital component to a quality education. In classrooms across the world, interactive white boards make learning come alive, and computers connect what our children learn in history class to what is going on in the world today. This technology sparks their interest. It transforms math from mere numbers into exciting, future-driving fields like architecture and engineering. These technological capabilities exist, but only for the fortunate minority. U. S. schools average one computer for every four students. While some schools are fully equipped with computer and Internet access, many fall below that average. My own state of Kentucky has made significant improvements in this area in the past few years. We are now among those leading the nation in Internet access with 100 percent of our schools linked to high-speed broadband...
