The beauty of St. Lukes Gospel, and its peculiar significance for a Greek mind, has been exhibited with singular grace and tenderness by Cardinal Newman. The Gospel which Csecilius hands to the Greek girl, Callista, is the Gospel of St. Luke. She recurred to the parchment and to the Bishops words, here you will see Who it is that we love, or words to that effect. She opened it at length and read. It was the writing of a provincial Greek; elegant, however, and marked with that simplicity which was to her taste the elementary idea of a classic author. It was addressed to one Theophilus, and professed to be a carefully digested and verified account of events which had already been attempted by others. She read a few paragraphs, and became interested, and in no long time she was absorbed in the volume. When she had once taken it up, she did not lay it down. It opened a view of a new state and community of things, which only seemed too beautiful to be possible. But not into a new state of things alone, but into the presence of One who was simply distinct and removed from anything that she had, in her most imaginative moments, ever depicted to her mind as ideal perfection. Here was that to which...
