By P.K. Sharma

Mittal Publications, New Delhi, 1991. N.A. Book Condition: New. Xvi+201pp The present study offers an analytical and comprehensive account of interplay of development banks and entrepreneurship promotion in independent India. Indian development banks are playing a catalytic role and making a meaningful contribution in numerous areas of entrepreneurship such as entrepreneurship promotion, development of viable entrepreneur, entrepreneurial education and training, creation of new manufacturing, trading and servicing enterprises, proliferation and upgradation of generated entrepreneurship, promotion of entrepreneurial management and supportive infrastructure. The entrepreneurial process which was utterly debilitated, deceased and paralysed under the British Rule has again revived and rejuvenated under the charismatic guidance, counselling, role and leadership of the Indian development banks. These banks are not merely acting as special credit institutions but they are also acting as special entrepreneurial and technological institutions. Development and diffusion of new entrepreneurship and technology in greening industries is emerging as their salient feature nowadays. They are substantially influencing the whole process of innovation and its application in new areas. Development banks are playing a dominant role in the life cycle of the project. Their constructive and co-ordinative role in national policy making is also very appreciative. The introduction of entrepreneurship as a...
